The supply is so far short of the decinity pressed into service as vans, and the express men laughed out loud when any one mentioned trunks y ments which could not but come to grief if the announced investigation is prosecuted to the extent promised.

Some justification for this attitude was found at the offices of the Public Service Commission, where it was counted out that, although the roads as generally believed to be largely overceptalized, no allowance is made by the commission for rentals paid for ranchises or for any bonding transactions undertaken by the companies.

"In determining the proper compensation to which a railroad is entitled," said Commissioner Travis H.
